Mississippi Main Street announces 2018 award winners

Submitted

The Mississippi Main Street Association (MMSA) celebrated achievements of Mississippi Main Street Communities at the 29th Annual Awards Luncheon in downtown Jackson. MMSA Board President Ed Gardner, MMSA Past President Allison Beasley, and MMSA staff presented awards to recipients from local Main Street programs throughout the state. The annual awards luncheon honors Main Street directors, board members and volunteers and recognizes the most outstanding downtown development projects from Main Street communities in Mississippi.

Laurel Main Street was well represented at the awards luncheon, as four local residents were among the 2018 recipients accepting awards. They are as follows:

MAIN STREET HERO – This award recognizes one outstanding community leader or public figure who has displayed an involved commitment to downtown and his or her Main Street program.

Winner: Mallorie Rasberry (nominated by Laurel Main Street)

Director: Judi Holifield

Accepting: Mallorie Rasberry

There are people who are dedicated volunteers and passionate advocates for their towns. They are at almost every event and are valued. You give them awards to show your appreciation and thank them constantly for their service. Then, there are people who have been there since the beginning, are at every event, and you never get the opportunity to thank them because, if you did, you would never be able to stop. There are people without whom the success of the organization is immediately called into question. That, ladies and gentlemen, is Mallorie Rasberry – Wife, mother, accountant, and fierce advocate for Downtown Laurel, Mississippi. When it comes to service with Laurel Main Street, Mallorie has done it all, including the early mornings and late nights. When thinking about her hard work, what else can we call her besides Laurel Main Street's Hero?

OUTSTANDING ADAPTIVE REUSE PROJECT – This award is granted to the best adaptive reuse of a building that has outlived its former use.

Winner: Laurel Main Street – The Burton's Building

Director: Judi Holifield

Accepting: Josh Nowell

Laurel Main Street Executive Director Judi Holifield

used to say that rehabilitating the Burton's building would be the ultimate domino effect; all of the other buildings along Magnolia Street would be sold if only that one could be. Josh Nowell bought the building and breathed new life into it. The historic character of the building was preserved, including the vintage sign, while new businesses were allowed to make their own mark on it. It is currently full with two retail stores, a co-working space, the offices for an engineering firm, and a restaurant. The best part is that Judi Holifield was right, and Magnolia Street is now filled with businesses.

OUTSTANDING COMMUNITY TRANSFORMATION – This is an overall award that goes to a Main Street program that has achieved a successful, preservation-based downtown revival.

Winner (Medium Size town): Laurel Main Street

Director: Judi Holifield

Accepting: Lew Yoder

How do you bring a town back? It's a question that has no easy answers, and the answers that are given usually require years and more work than one might ever imagine. However, for Downtown Laurel, there is no question that the town has been revived in a powerful way. A stream of dedicated volunteers has made possible a vibrant town full of creative and passionate people. Over a dozen new businesses have opened in the past two years, and more are on the way; vacant buildings are now the exception rather than the rule. LMS is at the center of a web of transformation, where local business doesn't just survive; it thrives.

MERCHANT OF THE YEAR - This award recognizes one outstanding local business owner who has a flourishing and innovative business and displayed an involved commitment to downtown and his or her Main Street program.

Winner: Lott Furniture Company (nominated by Laurel Main Street)

Director: Judi Holifield

Accepting: Rodney Rowell

Lott Furniture Co. is Laurel's oldest business. They have over a century of history in our small town and a plan to stick around another hundred years. Rodney Rowell and his wife Angie believe that their business is more than just a means to an end; they believe that it is a resource for them to put down roots and live in a community of people united toward a common goal. The business is most certainly a family affair. Rodney's mother worked there for over 50 years, and he and Angie met at Lott when she started working there as well. The Lott team has taken Mr. Lott's original business model and adapted it for young people who are moving to Laurel, and they are dedicated to being tireless advocates for their town. Laurel Main Street hopes we never have to know a Downtown Laurel without Lott Furniture!

"This is the Mississippi Main Street Association's most important event of the year," said Ed

Gardner, MMSA Board president. "It gives us an opportunity to meet with and celebrate the local directors and investors throughout the state that are doing the hard work of making our downtown districts more competitive, successful and sustainable. We are thrilled to honor our economic development and preservation heroes in Mississippi's downtowns."

Since 1993, Mississippi Main Street Association has generated more than $5 billion in private and public investment (including more than $1.2 billion in public investment). In 2017, Mississippi Main Street programs generated 325 net new businesses, 95 business expansions to existing businesses, 1,458 net new jobs, 109 façade rehabilitations and 86 downtown residential units. MMSA currently has 48 active Main Street cities throughout the state, six Downtown Network members, and numerous Associate, Allied professional members, and Friends of Main Street.

Former Laurel player signs with Lady Bobcats

ELLISVILLE – A former Laurel High School standout has joined the Jones County Junior College women's basketball team.

Tamirra Haskin signed with East Central Community College after graduating from LHS. She started 20 games for the Lady Warriors, averaged 11.6 points per game and was Honorable Mention All-MACJC this past season.

"We are excited to have Tamirra join our team here at Jones," said JCJC head coach Missy Bilderback. "She is a strong guard that finishes well around the basket and can shoot it as well. She has played in this league a year and that experience is huge. I look forward to having an opportunity to coach Tamirra."

HANDBAGS and HIGH HEELS

This week, I am stepping away from my high heels to talk about another topic dear to my heart – sports. Please don't tune out, ladies. There will still be a little fashion in here toward the end!

As some of you know, Mississippi State's baseball team is currently making a pretty amazing run through the College World Series in Omaha. By the time this article prints, the championship games will have been played and the fate of my team will have been decided. For now, though, I am still nervously enjoying the ride.

This is a team that has risen to the college baseball elite from the ashes.

Three games into the season, coming off of a sweep by USM, the State coach was forced to resign amid scandal, and pitching coach Gary Henderson stepped in as interim head coach. After a rocky start (16-16 and only 2-7 in SEC play), something finally clicked. In-state rival Ole Miss came to town, and in what has now become State's signature, they took the series from the No. 4 team in the nation with a walk-off win in the bottom of the 11th inning. Sweeps of No. 6 Arkansas and No. 1 Florida soon followed, cementing State a spot in post-season play.

Emily Hall
Fashion Columnist

Most people wrote off State as a quick two-loss team who would be watching the action in Omaha from Starkville. But this team never quit. Nail-biting innings and last-minute heroics have propelled these boys to the biggest stage in college baseball – and they aren't finished yet.

The road to Omaha has been awesome to watch. An interim head coach has been named 2018 Coach of the Year. Relatively unknown college kids have become household names. Chiquita and Dole, two major produce companies, have publicly thrown support to State. Why, you might ask, would they do that? It all comes down to sports superstitions.

In the bottom of the second inning of a game against Oklahoma in the Tallahassee regional, freshman Jordan Westburg got hungry and grabbed a banana. After a dismal start to the inning, Westburg put the banana on his head in an effort to keep the mood in the dugout light. He talked to it, used it as a radar gun, and even put sunscreen on it. The Bulldogs went on to score 8 runs in the top of the third inning, and the rally banana was born.

At every game since, you can see bananas all over the stadium. The dugout is full of them. Fans wear banana t-shirts and carry plastic bananas. A few fans in Omaha even have full banana costumes. I have my own rally banana, much to the chagrin of my husband. He doesn't mind the superstition of the banana. But he does mind a solid black rotting banana sitting on our kitchen counter. But it has been with me since the Dawgs won the super regional at Vanderbilt, and it will stay with me as long as we keep winning. It's only weird if it doesn't work, right?

As you can guess from the 2-week-old banana, I am a huge believer in sports superstitions. I have a lot of State clothing and jewelry – jerseys, t-shirts, hats, rings, earrings, bracelets, etc. If I am wearing any of my jewelry and we start to lose, I take it off piece by piece. And I don't wear it for the next game. I also consider the outfit I was wearing during the loss bad luck and throw it in the washing machine to get rid of the bad juju. On the other hand, when we win, the shirt goes back in the closet for the next game.

On Saturday, June 9th, State lost to Vanderbilt. My banana was replaced and my maroon shirt went into the hamper. The next night, while wearing a grey t-shirt with the word "LOVE" and the "o" replaced by our Bulldog logo, we won an epic super regional final to advance to Omaha. I have worn that same grey t-shirt for every game since.

Most recently we played on a Tuesday morning, and I watched the game on my phone while working at my desk. I dressed for a normal day at work but brought the t-shirt with me. It sat draped across my lap for the duration of the game. We won 12-2. We play tomorrow at 2:00 p.m. I will be at work again. So will the t-shirt.

Emily Hall is the Fashion Columnist and Media Manager for the Impact. Her black banana has since been placed in a Ziploc bag, but it remains in its spot on the counter.

Mission At The Cross Restoration Run

This year's event welcomes the largest number of participants to date.

Participants start the 6th Annual Mission at the Cross race on Magnolia Street by the Hellfighters Motorcycle Shop. The race was held on Saturday, June 23.

The first participant reaches the finish line just twenty minutes into the 5K race.

Locals of all ages enjoyed participating in the sixth annual Restoration Run. When participants registered, they were entered to win a one week stay at San Carlos Condo in Gulf Shores, a one week stay at Ramon's Village Resort in San Pedro, Belize, cash awards, and lots of door prizes! A free Waffle House breakfast after the race was available for all the participants.

Two children enjoy the ride as their father pushes them through the finish line of the race.

Sylva Bay Academy host 7-on-7 tournament

By James Pugh

Sylva Bay Academy - in coordination with Bay Springs, Raleigh, Clarkdale and Enterprise - hosted it's first 7-on-7 football tournament Tuesday morning.

"I have to give credit to Dan Brady [head football coach at Bay Springs High School]," said Sylva Bay head coach Terry Underwood. "He's the one that formed this small league we have for the month of June. Every Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. us, Raleigh, Clarkdale, Enterprise and Bay Springs all get-together and we throw a little 7-on-7."

It was Sylva Bay's turn to host the 7-on-7 tournament.

"What we do is each week we rotate it out to the different schools," Underwood said. "It was at Bay Springs last week. This week it was here at Sylva Bay. Next week we'll either be at Enterprise or Clarkdale."

Underwood said the 7-on-7 tournament is good for his program.

"The kids get to compete at a higher level," said Underwood. "I know its very beneficial for us. We get to throw and catch, and we get to see things that we work on in practice [play out]. The biggest thing is that it is great conditioning for us."

"I think this is a very positive thing. I know a lot of people do this around the state. I know when I coached at Oak Grove, we'd get together with Hattiesburg, Petal and PCS and do the same thing."

The second-year SBA coach compares it to summer league basketball.

"It's a very positive thing, and I'm glad we're able to do it," said Underwood. "It's much like what summer league basketball is to its program."

Like some of the other teams in the tournament, Sylva-Bay Academy isn't known for its passing game. So how does it help the program?

"You get to work on throwing and catching the ball," Underwood said. "For us at Sylva Bay, we can't do that much in the regular season. We don't have enough bodies. But to line up against seven guys in the secondary, it helps us read coverage. Its great for our quarterbacks, running backs and receivers. And for our defensive personnel, it helps us get a read on the offense. It helps you improve those aspects of the game."

Sylva Bay Academy opens the 2018 season on August 17 at Tri-County Academy.

Miss. State hires new baseball coach after magic run ends in Omaha

By Dale McKee

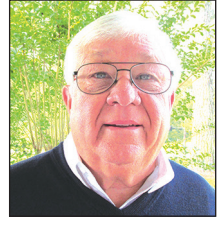

The final chapter of the 2018 Mississippi State baseball season came to a close Saturday night in Omaha. The Bulldogs (39-29) fell to Oregon State, 5-2, in the semifinal round of the College World Series. The Beavers will now play Arkansas in a best of three series for the title.

This was Mississippi State's tenth appearance in the College World Series, and this year's baseball team made one of the most phenomenal runs in Bulldog baseball lore. All Mississippi State baseball teams are compared to the 1985 team that was led by future Major League All-Stars Will Clark, Rafael Palmeiro, Jeff Brantley and Bobby Thigpen and one of the best college baseball coaches in Ron Polk. This 2018 team of overachievers will probably go down in history as popular as that star-studded 1985 team.

Think about this 2018 team. They lost their head coach in the first weekend of the season, but thank goodness the long haul of a 70-game season is not a short run but a marathon. So they regrouped and went forward. Besides the coaching change, these Bullies were also playing on the road much more than at home as construction was going on at Dudy Noble Field. Even with those obstacles MSU fought and clawed their way to a 15-15 SEC mark. In the postseason, these Bulldogs won a Tallahassee and Nashville Super Regional with walk-offs in both locations. They won 11 times in their final at-bat this season. They even carried that magic over to Omaha by beating Washington, 1-0, on the first day in their final at-bat of the CWS. MSU trailed in four of its eight wins in the NCAA Tournament and made comebacks in 21 of its 39 wins this season. This team, propelled by junior outfielder Jake Mangum and the good luck rally banana charm caught the attention of the college baseball world.

Early Monday morning, MSU announced the hiring of Chris Lemonis to take over as the Bulldogs' baseball skipper for next season. Lemonis comes to Starkville from Indiana, where he had a good run for four seasons. Before taking his first head coaching job at Indiana, Lemonis coached under Dan McDonnell at Louisville and helped the Cardinals reach the College World Series three times in eight seasons. At least one baseball publication rates him as the nation's top college baseball recruiter, and he was in charge of McDonnell's recruiting at Louisville. The Hoosiers went 40-19 under Lemonis this spring. Lemonis will replace interim Head Coach Gary Henderson.

New Orleans Saints

The Saints after three straight so-so seasons rebounded to an 11-5 mark due to an influx of a great 2017 draft class. Led by Offensive Rookie of the Year Alvin Kamara and Defensive Rookie of the Year Marshon Lattimore and the old master Drew Brees, the Saints almost made it to the NFC Championship game. The Saints' offense is one of the best in the league, but last year's offense added a running game that actually helped the defense improve. The defense went from 30th to 10th overall and that improvement led to the three-win improvement from the previous season.

The Saints will have to get off to a strong start as they face Tampa Bay in week one and Atlanta in week three. The Saints' road schedule is demanding as they travel to play Baltimore, Minnesota and the L.A. Rams in weeks 7-9. Those three teams all whipped the Saints last season. Also trips to Dallas and Philly loom in November. So if the Saints are going to make another playoff run, they must steal a couple of those road games.

MLB Predictions

Major League baseball is hard to predict. Who could have predicted the worst team in the American League in Baltimore could go into Atlanta and win a series from the NL East league leading Braves this past weekend? Who could have predicted that last place Cincinnati would sweep the Chicago Cubs in all four games? Last year, the Chicago White Sox won only 67 games but swept the World Series Champion Houston Astros in three games. I guess that is why baseball is so special. As a famous coach once said, "The best team does not always win, but the team that plays the best wins."
